

.....
Proposed Changes to 2.6.2 College Governance Document

Justification: RPA was originally formed when budget allocation from the university to the colleges was largely centralized before the RMM model. Now, most allocations are “automated.” Therefore, the focus needs to be on communicating with the Colleges with appeals made to the provost only after university-wide issues have been identified from concerns in multiple colleges.

Original

2.6.2 College Governance Documents

The governance document of each college describes its mission, governance domains, governance structure, and other policies and procedures. The current documents must be publicly available through a link to a document website provided to the Office of the Senior Vice President and Provost and the Faculty Senate. College governance documents are reviewed by the Faculty Senate Committee on College and Departmental Document Review (CDDR). College governance documents should include the following items as required by the Resource Management Model (RMM):

- Each dean shall have a budget advisory council/committee with significant faculty membership, including at least one faculty senator. The governance document should describe the membership of the college's budget advisory committee.
- The dean will communicate to members of the college annually the college goals, priorities, planning, and budget.

Please refer to the CDDR Committee for information about college governance document requirements.

New

2.6.2 College Governance Documents

The governance document of each college describes its mission, governance domains, governance structure, and other policies and procedures. The current documents must be publicly available through a link to a document website provided to the Office of the Senior

Vice President and Provost and the Faculty Senate. College governance documents are reviewed by the Faculty Senate Committee on College and Departmental Document Review (CDDR). College governance documents should include the following items as required by the Resource Management Model (RMM):

- Each college shall have a budget advisory council/committee that meets with and advises the dean. The governance document should describe the membership of the college's budget advisory council/committee, but it must include the college's representative on the Resource Policies and Allocations Council as well as faculty members from multiple departments in the college.
- The dean will communicate to members of the college annually the college goals, priorities, planning, and budget.

Please refer to the CDDR Committee for information about college governance document requirements.